The Turks in Constantinople are glad to welcome anybody, so long as the newcomers bring food. Hunger is a powerful ruler.

Report has it that former Emperor Charles of Austria sits at his desk for hours, staring vacantly. Perhaps he is staring at that huge pile of money which he is drawing constantly as commander of the Austrian army, and wondering if he is earning it.

The floating of a fifth Liberty loan during the latter part of April, 1919, ought to give the American people plenty of chance to recover from the fourth loan, as well as from Christmas indulgences. There are virtually five months before the beginning of the fifth loan.

Germany's reported invitation to President Wilson to visit German territory may probably be put down as an invitation that was never sent and never intended to be sent. Reports of that nature have been coming out of Germany for weeks, or ever since the armistice was signed; and it is safe to say that most of them were fashioned in the brain of some correspondent or other.

The German delegates to the armistice hearing evidently expected the allies to treat them as representatives of a government which had stood for the high things in the war, and they were greatly disappointed to be treated with cold austerity. The casual observer will assert that the Germans got just what they deserved; indeed, they were treated with all the consideration that could have been expected with reason.

Vice President Thomas Marshall does not hanker after the duties and responsibilities of the presidency, even for a month or six weeks. He is pretty thoroughly satisfied with his present job and will not exercise the prerogatives of president unless he is driven to it by a court order. It is not probable that a court order will be issued; so Vice President Marshall can rest quietly in his little niche.

Vermont will ungrudgingly give credit to Burlington for doing a splendid work in oversubscribing its quota to the United War Work fund 100 per cent, or 25 per cent more than the increased quota fixed for the state and apportioned among the cities and towns. Burlington raised practically one-sixth of the entire amount subscribed by the entire state. The charge of slackness cannot be laid against that city now.

Vice Admiral William S. Sims has proven himself equally as good at diplomacy as at fighting, and his qualifications for the latter are on a high plane. Therefore, the announcement that he will be promoted to the rank of admiral of the United States navy is pleasing to the entire people of the United States. The promotion will be fitting recognition of his services as commander of the American naval forces in European waters.

The veiled threat by the New York police department to use machine guns against soldiers and sailors who may be mixed up in some disturbances growing out of the flagrant flaunting of the red flag by civilians of the metropolis does not speak well for the prestige of the New York police department, or for the temperament of the heads of the department. Surely there are other means at the disposal of the policemen of that city to put down disturbances against the peace and quiet of the people.

The demobilization of the student army training corps in approximately 500 colleges and universities about the country, particularly in the eastern section, will cause a great disarrangement of plans and considerable loss to those institutions; but the government has promised to make adjustments which, it is expected, will make up for a large part of those losses, if not entirely. With the regular combat troops of the United States service being mustered out, it would not be wise to continue the S. A. T. C. arm in operation.

In his enthusiasm over the American soldiers, perhaps Major General Edwards went further than he intended in his Boston address this week when he said that the returning soldiers would rule the country. Of course, the returning soldiers will fill a large place in the thoughts and activities of the country but they will not presume to rule the country. The stuff of which heroes is made will not permit them to thrust themselves constantly and prominently into view of their countrymen. The soldiers will settle down eventually into the place they occupied before their transformation from civilians and they will exert a mighty influence in that place, but they will not attempt to go beyond that.

THE GERMANS MUST PAY.
The Germans will probably be made to pay for every cent of the damage they are said to have done to the 150 airplanes gathered near Stuttgart for sur-

FOOT troubles are much commoner than over-sensitive men and women realize. They are so general that Walk-Over manufacturers maintain a department devoted wholly to the design and construction of Corrective Shoes.

THESE shoes are approved by Orthopedic surgeons of the highest reputation. There is a large and varied line of these Corrective Shoes.

Arch troubles of a simple nature, they correct simply. Arch troubles unwisely allowed to progress to a stage requiring the use of stiff, reinforced shank construction, they relieve definitely.

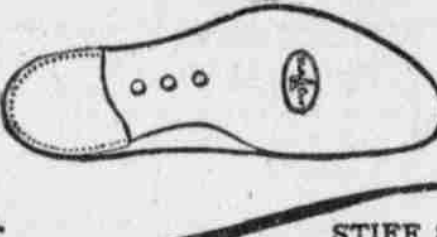

If you suffer from foot complaints of any sort, come to us before they become acute. Our shoe-fitters have received the customary Walk-Over instruction from the factory's experts. They will provide shoes that will correct and relieve. No charge is made except for the shoes.

Don't put it off. Call and see how well-informed, accurate, and sympathetic our salespeople are. With the proper shoes on your foot, you will feel years younger.

render to the allies. These items, when known to be added to Germany's bill of cost in this war, will be calculated to make the perfidious foe realize that it pays to be honest under conditions like these if at no other time. Every bit of property which the armistice compelled Germany to hand over must be surrendered in good condition, and if not in good condition Germany will have to suffer the consequences in the conference which is to draw up the treaty of peace. It would have been far better for Germany had the 150 airplanes been left intact.
